

Message to the Youth

Coco Tache

For what we See Outside of us Today is the mirror of where humanity stands within.

As living and conscious beings, we're invited to let our inner hearts shine, so that everything at the outside can be touched by it. The inner and outer go hand in hand. The planet and ourselves can only be redeemed, when we become redeemers.

What we experience today is a certain death of spirituality. One cannot give up if we know that God lives within us. In knowing this, it is impossible to become poor or to give up, as our hearts are always filled with love and light.

The seeds of all our potentials lie already within us, ready to be watered in order to blossom. The potential of the whole universe is lying within us, it is our love and our attention mixed with our will of realisation that bring it to life.

Our hearts know the truth since ever. In listening to our hearts, all the superficial and distractions fall apart in order to give birth to the real and to our true selves.

Let's include our children in the reflections of how to build our new world. Their purity and innocence is able of bringing down whole new ideas.

In wishing something very strongly and feeling it in our hearts, it will realize.

At the end, everything will be fine. We are made out of love and we can only re-become of what we are made.

We do well to regularly connect with our hearts and to ask it the question. What would love do now? Our heart knows the truth and the path since ever.
